Asset managers' online forum launched today

Community housing asset staff can now share information and advice online

The Federation is pleased to announce that the asset managers' online forum is launching today.

Asset managers were introduced to the forum at their network meeting in December last year. Since then, we have made some changes to the structure of the forum, produced a user guide, and have further tested it with sector representatives.

The forum provides a way for asset staff from community housing associations across NSW to get together to share their considerable knowledge and expertise and to be updated on current programs. Many members of the network, especially from remote areas, felt that it would be useful to have a way to share this knowledge all the year round. The forum's purpose is to strengthen the community housing sector through peer learning and networking.

We strongly recommend that you use the attached user guide as a reference during your first few visits to the forum.

To access the forum, go to the Resource Bank on our website or click on this link:

Note: The forum is password protected. Asset managers were issued with usernames and passwords at the December network meeting. If you do not have these, or have forgotten yours, please contact Poppy on poppyd@communityhousing.org.au

The Federation believes that this forum represents an excellent opportunity to increase and improve communications with the sector and between members. We will consider establishing other specialist forums in future if there is demand from members.
